Visit Ockle and experience the breathtaking beauty of Ardnamurchan, abundant with wildlife, flowers, hidden little bays, magnificent views of the Inner Hebrides, unforgettable sunsets over the sea and, above all, peace and tranquillity.

Ockle is on the North coast of Ardnamurchan, nine miles from the village of Kilchoan, where a regular car and passenger ferry sails to Tobermory on the Isle of Mull (crossing time 35 minutes). Kilchoan has a well-stocked village shop where you may place an advance order to be delivered to your home ready for your arrival. Two local hotels serve meals and bar snacks, and Ardnamurchan Lighthouse, now opened as a visitors' centre, also provides snacks during the daytime.

Sanna has a large sandy beach, with such clear waters that you can see the fish swimming. Other small beaches are found at Portuairk and Achateny. Ockle itself has a number of bays, and if you really feel like a good walk, there is a truly beautiful bay three and a half miles away at Gortenfern, where the silver sand makes singing sounds as it slips between your toes.

All our houses have fenced gardens, situated within a working farm. Each house is fully equipped with gas cooker, microwave, washing machine, dryer, freezer, satellite TV, payphone, electric heating and private water supply. Electricity is charged at cost. Linen and towels are available for a small extra charge.
